LOCAL DELEGATES ATTEND FARMERS UNION MEETING

The responsibility of the members of the Virginia Farmers Union to protect the family farmer and to develop and support a healthy farm program is more important now than at any time in recent years.

This is the opinion of E. F. Davis and Henry Mann, and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Rush, who were among those attending the Farmers Union state convention in Roanoke.

One of the highlights of the meeting was an address by Charles F. Brannon, Secretary of Agriculture during the Truman Administration. Mr. Brannon labeled the Eisenhower farm program as a "complete failure " as far as the farmer, the consumer and the taxpayer are concerned. He pointed out that a sound farm program is one which affords producers of agricultural products fair returns in the market place." Mr. Brannon said he sees no reason for "class legislation or special advantages" for the farmer.

John B. Vance, who was re-elected state president for the fourth time, pointed out early in the 2-day convention that President Eisenhower's proposal for agriculture "constitutes not a farm program but instead the abolition of a farm program."

Urging a stronger county organization of Farmers Union people, Mr. Vance said that "we as farm people must once and for all decide whether or not we are going to build a real farm organization. Farmers have got to be made to understand that this thing of building Farmers Union is just as much a part of carrying on a successful farming operation as using the right kind of seed or the right amount of fertilizer."

Poland said to have asked big Soviet credit.

In FASHION now

It seems that the once popular notion that a woman must be conservative to be properly dressed, is a thing of the past. For the past several years costume jewelry has played an important part in the fashion picture. In fact, the costume jewelry business is booming and women are making use of costume jewelry in a high, wide and handsome manner.

Jewelry of modern manner quite often leads a double life. For example a pin can be worn at the nape of the neck, as a single adornment of a skirt, or as a barette in the hair.

The new interest in the chemise has brought about longer and more beads, worn in almost any manner you can think of. Try a long rope of beads or pearls caught on the shoulder with a pin. Scatter pins are good, but better still is a grouping of your favorite pins — say as many as three worn at one time.

The dangle earring is a must. We thought we had seen the last of these, at least for a while, last summer, but here they are again —not quite as large as before but every bit as long.

One of the most significant trends in jewelerd accessories is the part that color plays in the new collections. Soft blue and green combined in lovely bits of jewelry, and red and pink are two examples of this trend.

In general pins are either quite large, used as an accent, or else small and dainty.

Sun colors are being used increasingly, in earrings, necklaces, brooches, and bracelets. The colors range from yellow, mango, through orange, pale greens to brilliant emeralds, pale pinks and dubonnet reds.

Jewel ascots are being used to add interest to low necked dresses. One exciting design is the crossover ascot. This adds interest to the back as well as the front of a gown.

McMinn-Chernault

The marriage of Miss Ethel Louise Chernault, daughter of Mrs. J. J. Chernault and the late Jesse J. Chernault, to Wendell D. McMinn, son of Mr and Mrs. Walter Ralph McMinn, of Brockway, Penn., took place February 1, 1958, at 2:0 o'clock.

The wedding took place at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. Charles R. Addington, of the New Hope Baptist Church.

The bride wore a white wool dress with matching hat, topped with mouton coat and a corsage of red roses.

The bride is a graduate of Appomattox High School, and is employed at Lynchburg Telephone Co. The groom is stationed at the Bedford Air Force Base.

After a southern trip, the couple will make their home in Lynchburg, at 502 Franklin St.

NEW BOOK IN THE COUNTY LIBRARY

The New Class
By Milovan Djilas.

This is a book on Communism by a man who until recently was one of its heroes. It is a book which exemplifies and expresses the deep agonies, the desperate yearning of the Soviet orbit's disillusioned intelligentsia for intellectual freedom, for personal dignity, for true social and economic progress; for a way out of the morass of false theories, bureaucratic ties and cruel exploitation. One of the great political documents of our time—perhaps the most important in its force and effectiveness.

Plan Lighting Program

The theme of the Appomattox County Lighting Program is "Better Lighting for Better Living." The committee concerned with the lighting program met last week to set up plans. Three homes have been selected as demonstration homes. They are those of John L. Harrison, Stonewall; J. B. Terry, Appomattox, and Harold Chambers, Red House.

Quality light will be emphasized in the home, while light for safety and convenience will be stressed on the outside. These homes will select one or more rooms to be treated as far as meeting necessary lighting requirements are concerned.

An open-house at each of these homes will be announced at a later date when interested families can visit to observe what type of lights are desirable which will meet health standards.

WATERFOWL SCARCE DURING JANUARY IN VIRGINIA

Each year the Fish and Wildlife Service conducts a waterfowl inventory during the month of January. The purpose is to determine the number of waterfowl wintering on the continental United States.

On January 16, 17, and 18, 1958, the Virginia Game Commission cooperated with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in an inventory which disclosed that waterfowl numbers were down over the same period for last year. During 1957 federal wardens and state personnel recorded 172,200 ducks, geese, coot and swan compared to 94,670 for the same period this year. This represents a drop of 77,530, or approximately 45 per cent.

A sharp decline of this nature may mean one of two things: that the waterfowl population is definitely lower than last year, or that the birds were elsewhere in the Atlantic Flyway or some other flyway during the inventory period.

Heart Fund Drive Approaches

Mr. Ivey Holland, chairman for the annual Heart Association campaign in this county, today released the following information about the Heart Fund activity.

What can the average person do to safeguard his own heart?

As has been noted, medical scientists have made dramatic progress in their fight against heart and blood vessel diseases.

Well - established is the fact that some forms of heart disease can be prevented, a few can be cured, and that almost all cases can be helped by proper treatment — especially after early diagnosis.

Tremendous forward strides have been made in the prevention of rheumatic fever, the successful treatment of bacterial infections of the heart, the use of new and improved drugs to control high blood pressure, and the surgical correction of congenital or acquired defects of the heart.

Dramatic progress also has been made in the diagnosis, care and the treatment of patients suffering from "heart attack", as in numerous other phases of the cardiovascular problem.

But these are things largely, if not wholly, within the providence of the physician. What, if anything, can the layman do?

The answer to this question can be set down in six broad and generalized rules. They are:

1. Don't worry needlessly about "symptoms." If in doubt, see your doctor.

2. Control your weight. Look better, feel better, work better, and live longer with normal weight.

3. Get enough rest. Regular rest relieves constant fatigue and lightens the work of your heart.

4. Keep physically fit. Exercise regularly and moderately. Have fun—"but act your age."

5, Ease up—and relax. Don't let tensions and anxieties wear you down. Relax and enjoy peace of mind.

6. Help fight heart disease. Remember that your contribution to the Heart Fund supports heart research, and brings the latest advances to you through education and community heart programs.

This last point deserves special consideration by every thoughtful person.

ASSOCIATION PROTESTS STATE BUDGET CUTS

The Southside Virginia Tuberculosis Association voted unanimously to seek restoration of funds for Piedmont Santitorium and the State Health Department cut from the State's proposed 1958-60 budget at the January 30 meeting of the board of directors. Resolutions were passed by the group to appeal to the Senate Finance and House of Delegates committees as well as to the legislators who represent the 9-county Southside area served by the Association for restoration of funds for these needs.

Harry Wellons, a board ... and district state rehabilitation supervisor informed the group that a $1,600 request to finance space ... a Rehabilitation Workshop at Piedmont Santtorium, Burkeville, was not approved in the state budget.

Mr. Wellons explained that if such space is provided, the State sanatorium for Negro TB patients would be eligible to receive federal funds to equip it.

A request by Dr. Mack I. Shanholtz, State Health Commissioner, for funds to create positions for 24 additional County Health Nurses and 12 Health Center Aids was also cut from the state budget. The Virginia Tuberculosis Association estimates that at present there is one public health nurse to 10,061 people in the counties of Virginia, and states that 5,000 is the largest number of people one public health nurse can carry with any degree of competency. With constantly increasing services, 3,000 people is a more realistic population load per nurse. 44,000 Virginians need some type of follow-up for TB from local Health Departments, according to the Virginia Tuberculosis Association. Public Health Nurses do this follow-up work.
